

The Letter Explained

The employees of the Greater Palais Royal, responsible for the growing success of the store not less than are the patrons, share the profits tomorrow. The letter you read in the left hand corner is a copy of one sent by the employees to their friends and patrons. The most necessary explanation surely is this—that those who have so often and so faithfully served you during the last year in the various departments should be the ones selected to wait upon you tomorrow.

Such lots are marked with a star, so that the reader will understand and arrange a visit as soon after breakfast as possible. Look for stars on these two pages.
